THE EXHIBIT FINDS FAVOR

Schools of Hawaii at the Exposition.

POTTER TALKS OF PARIS

Secretary of the Island Commission Speaks of Creditable Display.

Major G. C. Potter, secretary of the Hawaiian Commission to the Paris Exposition, who returned to this City on the Rio last week, brings most favorable reports as to the way the exhibition from the Islands was received, especially the educational department of the display, which attracted wide interest and carried away a gold medal and a grand prize diploma.

Potter said yesterday: "You know we were delayed by the bubonic plague at the beginning, as we could not get away from here with the exhibit until that matter was settled, and whereas we should have been in Paris by the middle of April, we did not arrive there until the latter part of June, by which time a great many of the prizes had been awarded. Quite by accident I found out that the reports of the jurors had not been sent in on either sugar or educational exhibits, and I hastened to get the Hawaiian displays arranged."

"The result was that Hawaiian sugar carried away a gold medal, and the primary educational department was awarded one of the grand prize diplomas, of which only two were given out in the United States, and with a mark of twenty-two credits; twenty-five credits being perfect. The exhibit of the Kamehameha Manual and Training School carried away a gold medal."

"This speaks very highly for the progress of the Islands, and I am sure that our display would have won recognition in many other departments had we not been delayed in getting them there until too late a date for competition."

"As it was the entire exhibit attracted a great deal of attention and the educational department was a subject of special attention by visiting professors and educational people from all parts of the world. The educational display consisted of sample work of the schools neatly bound, and many excellent photographs of the children at work, of the school buildings and other things of educational interest. Our Islands did not like the Polynesian group, attempt to portray pictures of native life, but rather endeavored to show the progress and development in educational matters. We had excellent photographs showing the various classes of children we have to deal with, Hawaiians, Japanese, Chinese, etc., and these photographs illustrated some of the difficulties we have to contend with in teaching the English language to children who are unfamiliar with it."

"Miss Smith, the American juror of the board, was very much pleased and interested, and the juror from France was so delighted with the results of the methods that she requested copies of the work to be sent to her for the French Minister of Public Instruction. The work was of especial interest to both the United States and France on account of the colonial problem. France has Madagascar to educate and the United States will soon be confronted with the educational problem in Porto Rico and Cuba, and in the Philippines."

"The German juror, Dr. Lepke, were very anxious to get portions of the exhibit, as was also the University of Bonn, Switzerland, and other colleges, but the matter that was given away was donated to the Field Columbian Museum of Chicago and the Philadelphia Commercial Museum."

"A feature of the educational exhibit that aroused special interest and comment was a bound book of drawings done by school children of the Islands, entitled 'Jack and the Bean Stalk.' The story of 'Jack and the Bean Stalk' had been told to the children and they had been put at the task of depicting their ideas of Jack's mother's cow, the house that Jack built, Jack planting the bean, the growth of the bean stalk, the castle at the top, etc. The result was most unique, and the little book was in much demand. W. W. Foote, the California Commissioner, wanted it badly for a personal souvenir, and we had to guard the little book very carefully from all kinds of designs. We managed to bring it back, however, and it will remain in Hawaii."

"The school song books written and arranged by Mrs. Frear and Mrs. Tucker, with their pretty stories of the caterpillar, the little birds of the Islands, etc., were also in much demand and copies were ordered for all parts of the world. 'The photos of the Hawaiian school building and the work being done there attracted special interest. The exhibit sent by St. Anthony's College of Walluku was very creditable, especially its plaster maps and art displays. 'Altogether Hawaii's part in the big exposition, though very small by comparison, by reason of its quality attracted a remarkable share of the attention. The display of our Islands was incomparably superior to that of other isolated groups, and but for the delay in the arrangements, I think Hawaii would have made even a better record in the awards. The little book entitled 'The Hawaiian Islands,' which was prepared specially by the Department of Foreign Affairs for the Exposition, was in great demand, and the progress and development of the 'Paradise of the Pacific' was certainly made most creditably manifest."

Highland Light's Rough Experience.

VICTORIA, B. C., Dec. 22.—The American bark Highland Light, one of the oldest craft in the coasting trade, is now at anchor in Barclay Sound, on the west coast of Vancouver Island, with her mizzenmast gone, her bulwarks torn away, her boats all gone but one and her hull leaking badly. She is lying about two miles from Eftingham inlet and will have to be towed back to port for repairs.

The Highland Light was loaded with coal and carried in the neighborhood of 2000 tons, being bound from the Sound for Hawaii. Last Saturday night, at about the time the Alpha met her doom in Baynes Sound and the City of Topeka crashed on the rocks in northern waters, she was struck by the same gale and swept from stern to stern by the high sea. She was off Cape Flattery at the time, although she had been out twenty days and should have been well on her way to Honolulu, when the wind caught her and drove her up to Barclay Sound, which friendly harbor the captain was able to make. The tug Tatooch has gone up for her and will be back tomorrow.

THE WAHIAWANS' NEW YEAR'S DAY

Colonists Enjoy a Picnic in the Pali of Waianae Mountains.

(Special Correspondence.)

WAHIAWA, Oahu, Jan. 3.—On New Year's day the residents of Wahiawa enjoyed to the uttermost a picnic in the Pali of the Waianae mountains. The boldness and striking beauty of the Pali of these mountains is not to be described. In the precipices, with their plunges to a sheer depth of hundreds of feet, to the green and smiling valley below, with its winding, silvery, ribbon stream, one is vouchsafed a prospect not typically Hawaiian and satisfying in its bold, majestic beauty.

The vast expanse of mother ocean which bursts unannounced upon the summit view, chose on New Year's day to be the "painted ocean" of Coleridge's lines, "As idle as a painted ship upon a painted ocean," worked out in a color scheme of the opaline shades of the least brilliant and most transparent of sea shells.

The crisp, sun-laden air, the scale of greens in the bold peaks and deep glens, the delicate opaline sea would have made a success of any picnic. The Californians declared that such a day was a compensation in itself. Doubtless it is sacrilege to relate in such connection the bountiful luncheon of roast turkey, roast chicken, salad, cakes and plum pudding, but these, alas! have their unholy place in all tales of mountain climbing in a brisk, bracing air. The merry picnic of sixty colonists drove home in the starting rays of the declining sun which touched with a rosy flush the mountain tops and "glimmering landscape." The picnic was promoted by Mr. J. H. Buhle, Mr. H. R. Hanna and Mrs. W. S. Thomas.

A Cedar Rapids (Ia.) paper gives the details of the tragic death of Dr. and Mrs. Van Rensselaer Dodge, missionaries at Tiao Tiao, China. On October 22d they were attacked by Boxers and together with a number of other families were burned with the house in which they had taken refuge.

The steamer Glenloch, loaded with 221,000 bushels of wheat, will leave shortly from Tacoma, Wash., for Liverpool, going via the Suez Canal, her object being to avoid the high prices of South American coal. She will be the first steam vessel to go from Tacoma to Europe over that route.
